Foote: On the Fourth of July, 1850, at Monument Place, With an Introduction The Board of Managers of the Washington National Monument Society, having deemed it expedient to celebrate the anniversary of our National Independence, appointed a committee, consisting of Messrs. Watterston, Smith, and Crawford, to make the necessary arrangements for the celebration. The honorable Henry S. Foote, of Mississippi, was requested to deliver an Oration or Address on that occasion, to which he kindly assented; and the necessary preparations were made for the celebration at Monument Place, by an extensive awning, and other accommodations, for those who might attend. The excessive heat of the weather prevented the formation of a military and civic procession, as was at first contemplated by the Board of Managers, but a large number of citizens and strangers attended, to participate in the ceremonies on that occasion. A spacious and commodious platform was erected at the east front of the Monument for the accommodation of the orator and invited guests; and at the appointed hour the Rev. Mr. Butler opened the ceremonies with an appropriate prayer, and was followed by Walter Lenox, Esq., Mayor of Washington, who read the Declaration of Independence in a clear and distinct voice, and was succeeded by the honorable Henry S. Foote, in an eloquent Address suited to the occasion. The Rev. Mr. Morgan pronounced the benediction; and the company were then invited to witness the ceremony of hoisting and laying the large block of marble presented by the Corporation, to be deposited in the Monument, at its west front. General Walter Jones, on behalf of the Councils...
