Excerpt from Baccalaureate Sermon: Delivered in the Chapel Wesleyan University, at the Close of the Collegiate Year, 1838-9, to the Candidates for the Bachelor's Degree It is a frequent incident in the gorgeous and sometimes instructive fictions of the middle ages, that when a young candidate for earthly fortunes goes forth to seek his future destinies, the patron of his previous years binds, perhaps, about his neck, some amulet, charmed with a secret spell, mysteriously connected with supernatural agencies, and holding a mastering arbitration over the fates of the young adventurer. Were I to select for you, my young friends, to whom this evening I address a requested parting charge, not an amulet, touched with lunar influences over your coming vicissitudes, but - what were infinitely more valuable - a high, a holy, an eternal principle, pregnant with priceless truth and connected with immortal destinies; it should be a full appreciation, by deep experience of that blessedness above all other bliss - the blessedness pronounced by him who spake as never man spake, upon the genuinely...
