There s a little word in the Latin tongue Which is big with meaning: said or sung, It strikes the ear like the ringing note Which leaps from the bugle s brazen throat. Spirit and matter, sense and soul, So strangely mixed in this human whole, Answer the summons with eager thrill, To do the work of the master, Will. Force of muscle and force of mind, The thinking sage and the toiling hind, For the task before them, newly gird Their weary loins at the magic word. To lift the veil from the secrets deep The blind arcana of science keep, Or to tear a foeman limb from limb, This is the word, and we call it Vim. Tis a little word, but wondrous strong; And its vital power, for right or wrong, To shake the world, till the world obey, Shall be the theme of my song to-day. Within this busy hive we call the world, There be too many drones and parasites, Too many idle dreamers, hangers-on Upon the skirts of industry.
